Why It Matters

"Every teen has the potential to become a future icon – and that journey begins by being seen, heard and supported," said Colleen Langner, EVP and chief residential officer of Cox Communications and a Southeast BGCA Trustee. "This contest is more than a creative outlet; it's a catalyst for designing futures and unlocking a world of possibility."

Cox Communications and Boys & Girls Clubs of America have partnered for more than two decades to supply Clubs across the country with Cox Innovation Labs for members to have access to and education on digital connectivity.

"Opportunities like this contest allow us to extend our impact by building confidence, expanding access, and helping more young people envision what's possible for their future," said Chad Hartman, National Vice President, Corporate Partnerships & Engagement at Boys & Girls Clubs of America. "Partnering with Cox Mobile opens the door for us to equip more high school students with the skills, support, and encouragement they need to move forward with purpose."
